

POTENTIAL ENERGY STORAGE SYSTEM

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a system for generating electrical power using hydraulic supports on which a building structure is mounted. A pump injects fluid into the supports to raise the building structure and thereby store energy in the elevated structure. A valve can be opened to deliver fluid under pressure to a turbine to generate electricity.

卷之三